Jillian and Chris met in third grade and went through elementary school, junior high and high school together. Chris played football and Jillian was a cheerleader. They also ran track together and hung out with the same friends. Even though they attended different colleges, they stayed in touch. The two became best friends after college and spent many summers at the Jersey Shore. But, it wasn't until three years ago that they realized they felt more than friends. "One day, we went to a museum in New York City. I thought we were going as friends but Chris says this was our first date," notes Jillian. The couple got engaged on June 29, 2007. "I had absolutely no idea," says Jillian. Three months prior to their engagement, the couple had purchased a condo and were installing their dishwasher. Chris disappeared but left behind flowers, an iPod and a note that said, "Play me." On the iPod were instructions on where Jillian could find him. "I ran outside and found Chris in the gazebo on one knee," says Jillian. "We have been living happily ever after since, literally."
